Youngsters 'bomb' Memorial Pool

For the past several years the Dixon Park District has been faced with large deficits in the operation of the Memorial Swimming Pool.

In an effort to spur attendance Superintendent of Recreation Rich Sedowski has planned a series of special events this summer.

One of those special events was held Tuesday—a "big-splash" contest. Dixon youngsters were invited to take their best shot from the high board in an effort to create the biggest disturbance they could.

The accompanying photos show how it happened.

For the younger children Tuesday there was a contest to see who could float the farthest.

Other events held so far include a greased watermelon chase and a penny dive.

Plans are being made to revive a Park District swimming team. The team was discontinued several years ago, but new interest has been shown in such a plan.

Sedowski reminds adults the pool is reserved for adults only on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. Pool hours are 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. daily. Admission is 50 cents for children and 80 cents for adults. Family season passes are available.

Legs and arms folded, this youth is about to enter the water.

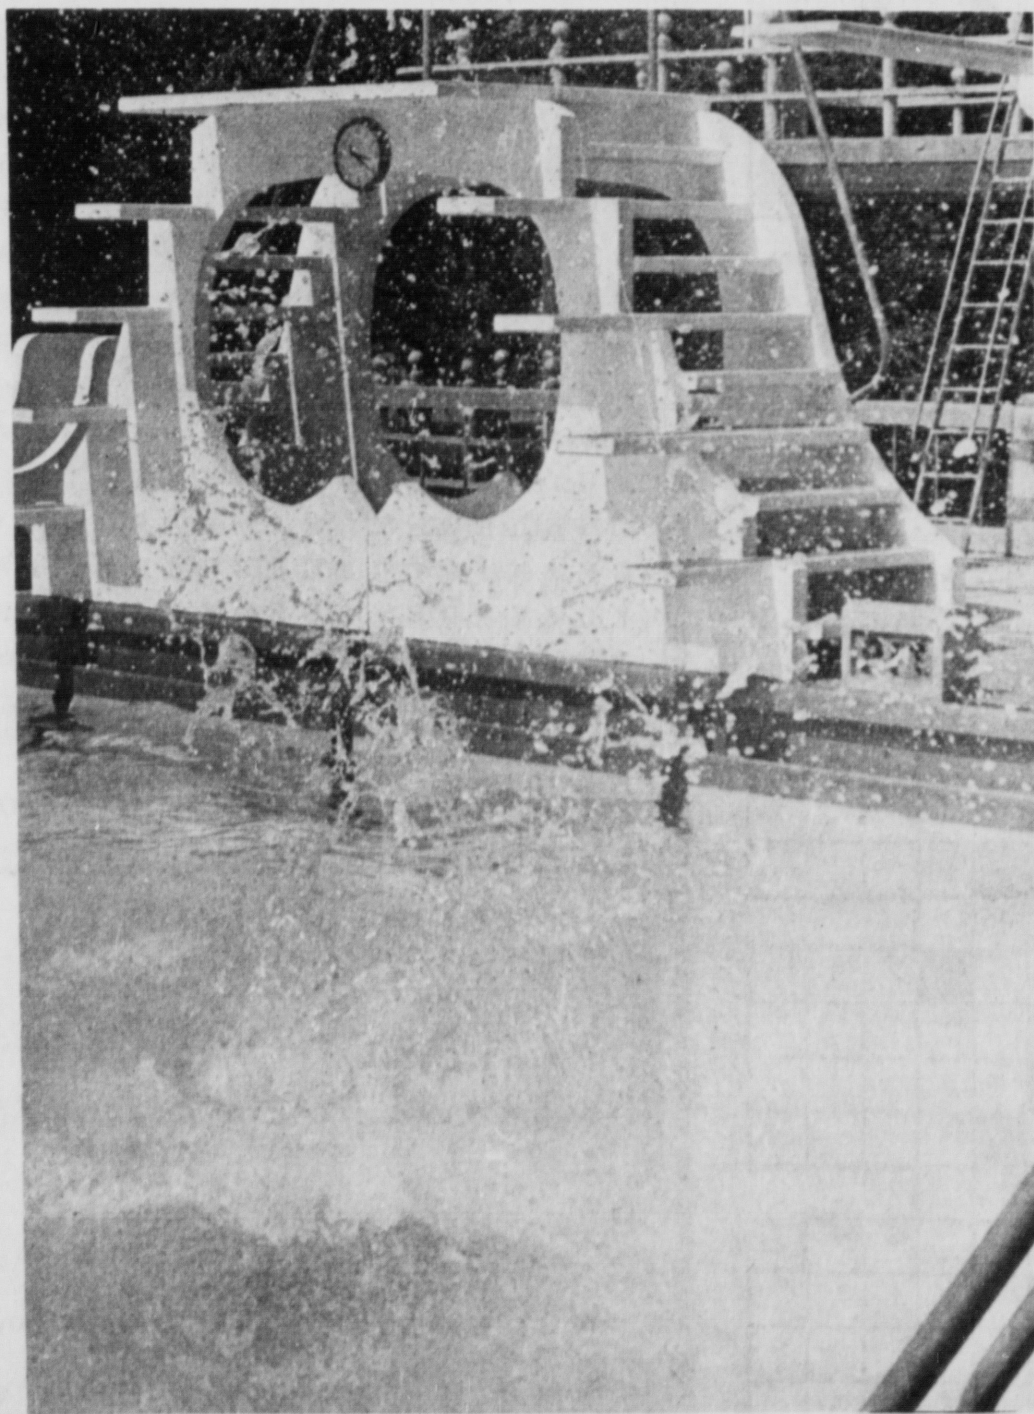

This boy is bent on face protection.

The water erupts as another diver gives it his best, but . . .

The eventual winner, Mike Lally, poises at the end of the board and . . .

Let's go with a water blast which was judged the best. (Telegraph Photos)

Faisal's assassin publicly beheaded with gold sword

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP)

The young Saudi prince found guilty of assassinating King Faisal last March was beheaded today with a golden sword before thousands of Saudi Arabians in this desert capital.

The crowd shouted "Allah akbar" — God is great — as the blade flashed down on the kneeling Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, the first member of the Saudi royal family ever executed in public.

The 27-year-old prince, a nephew of King Faisal, appeared calm as he knelt before the chopping block. His hands were tied behind his back, but he was not blindfolded.

The executioner, a black Saudi dressed in a yellow robe, displayed no emotion as he wielded the sword.

The execution was in front of the government palace, which faces the main city square of Riyadh.

The state radio said the U.S. educated prince was judged guilty by a Sharia — religious — court and the death sentence approved by King Khaled, Faisal's successor.

Faisal, whose age was variously given as 69 or 70, was shot to death at close range on March 25, as he celebrated the feast of the Prophet Mohammed's birthday.

Immediately after the assassination the Saudi royal family issued a statement describing the prince as mentally deranged. However, a medical panel examined him and declared him in full control of his mental faculties.

Saudi Arabia's strict Islamic law prescribes the death penalty for murder unless the defendant is found to be insane. Normally executions are held on Friday after noon prayers, the major religious service of Islam.

Saudi sources in Beirut speculated the execution was being held today with short notice to avoid a scene of mass hysteria and a flood of spectators pouring into Riyadh from other towns.

Prince Faisal was graduated from the University of Colorado and also studied at the University of California at Berkeley and San Francisco State College.

Sharp increase in housing starts

Ford reported ready to veto subsidy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — As new housing construction showed a sharp increase for the third straight month, President Ford was reported ready to veto a bill providing government subsidies to help families buy homes.

Ford's intention was announced Tuesday as the Commerce Department reported that construction starts on new homes increased by 14.2 per cent in May. In addition, new permits issued for housing, an indicator of future activity in the industry, rose 8.6 per cent in May to an annual rate of 909,000, the Commerce Department reported. A year ago permits were being issued at an annual rate of 1.159 million in May.

Ford's intention to veto the housing subsidy bill was disclosed by House Republican leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona after a White House meeting of the President and GOP legislative leaders.

The White House already had expressed reservations about the estimated $1.2 billion cost of the bill and its impact on the federal deficit. The bill would provide mortgage subsidies or cash grants of $1,000 to about 400,000 buyers of new homes in an effort to promote new housing construction and jobs in the industry, where unemployment currently is running about 20 per cent. It also would allow unemployed or "underemployed" homeowners to borrow up to $250 a month from the government to prevent mortgage foreclosures.

Rhodes said the main reason for the veto of the bill is that "the provisions do not seem to be calculated to take care of the problem."

He said the impact of the bill on new housing construction would come after housing starts had picked up anyway, perhaps causing a "deleterious effect" on the economy by increasing inflation.

However, J. S. Norman Jr., president of the National Association of Home Builders and a supporter of the bill, said his organization's checks with administration officials show "the President has not committed himself yet" on whether to veto the bill.

He also said the new housing figures "do not predict any dramatic turnaround. This indicates there will be a slow, painful recovery."

The administration interpreted the data differently. Housing Secretary Carla A. Hills called the housing report encouraging and said, "This data, along with the recent increases in the sales of new one-family homes, seems to indicate that a recovery is under way."

Official state logo is chosen

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Bicentennial Commission adopted today an official state logo in honor of its favorite son, Abraham Lincoln.

The logo consists of the stovepipe hat and beard of Lincoln with the words "Illinois" Celebration '76" substituting for the ordinary facial features of the man.

Simon, speaking at a National Coal Association convention, said government controls on the energy industry stand in the way of doubling U.S. coal production by 1985 and achieving energy self-sufficiency.

"Our goal of 1.2 billion tons per year of production by 1985 will not be reached if we do not remove government impediments and create incentives for expanded production," Simon said.

Speaking at the same convention, Coleman repeated the administration's proposals to lessen regulation in rail, motor and air transportation. "Existing regulatory provisions are excessively restrictive and costly to industry and to the consumer," he said.

Moving against federal involvement in business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by President Ford, administration spokesmen are pressing for a reduction of federal regulation over business.

"The time has come to cut the federal red tape that binds the hands of small business," Ford told a National Federation of Independent Business conference. Delegates applauded the remark enthusiastically.

In other appearances on Tuesday, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. voiced similar opinions. And former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, a potential challenger to Ford for the Republican presidential nomination next year, echoed the administration's denunciations of government controls.

"We must free the business community from regulatory bondage so it can produce," Ford said.

Ford said, "Your efforts are stifled by unnecessary, unfair and unclear rules and regulations."

Ford said that in the last few years the estimated 10 million businesses in America — "from mom and pop stores to huge corporations — have struggled to adapt to consumer protection laws, to environmental mandates, to energy sources, to inflation, to recession and to complicated high taxation."

Ford also announced he is naming eight members of a new federal paperwork commission "to simplify and reduce the enormous clog of federal forms and documents."

"It's hard to believe, but the number of different federal forms sent out from Washington, at last count, totaled 5,146," Ford said.

Ford has sounded similar themes in recent speeches.

Simon, speaking at a National Coal Association convention, said government controls on the energy industry stand in the way of doubling U.S. coal production by 1985 and achieving energy self-sufficiency.

"Our goal of 1.2 billion tons per year of production by 1985 will not be reached if we do not remove government impediments and create incentives for expanded production," Simon said.

Speaking at the same convention, Coleman repeated the administration's proposals to lessen regulation in rail, motor and air transportation. "Existing regulatory provisions are excessively restrictive and costly to industry and to the consumer," he said.

Hospitalized by car crash

Mary Ilardo, 72, 1212 Robin Road, is listed in satisfactory condition in KSB Hospital following a Monday accident on Galena Avenue.

Ilardo pulled out of the Huffman Automatic Car Wash and was struck by a truck driven by Henry J. Van Oosten, 53, Polo.

Dixon Police are investigating the crash.

Record shift by balance of payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an all-time record shift, the nation's balance of payments moved sharply out of deficit into near balance during the first three months of this year, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the payments accounts were in deficit by $475 million in the first quarter this year, compared with a $657-billion deficit in the final three months of last year.

A department spokesman said it was the biggest shift on record, surpassing a move in the second quarter of 1974 from a $2.38 billion deficit to a $1.62 billion surplus.

Wenner recommended May 28 that the cost of mailing a first-class letter be lowered from 10 cents to 8½ cents and that rates be increased for parcels, printed matter and for bulk mailings.

The Postal Service official claimed that Wenner's recommendations would lead to a substantial drop in mail usage by business mailers. The resulting dropoff in revenue, estimated at more than $350 million per year, would in the short run be borne by the taxpayers, the official said.

Within a decade, publishers and bulk mailers would turn to private delivery systems, and private parcel services would take over from the Postal Service in most areas, the official predicted.

As the business mailers desert the Postal Service, a greater portion of the service's fixed costs would be borne by the first-class mailer, according to this scenario.

"In anything other than the short run, the average first-class mailer is going to pay more," he said.

The Postal Rate Commission will hold hearings starting July 7 on Wenner's recommendations. A final ruling will be issued later in the summer.

Whatever the commission decides, the Postal Service is expected to impose a temporary rate increase later in the year.

Says postal hike would discourage large mailers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many large users of the Postal Service would stop using the mail if a judge's recommendation for increasing their postal rates takes effect, the Postal Service says.

The Postal Service would be left with little to do besides deliver letters, and postage costs would be substantially higher than they are now, a Postal Service official said Tuesday.

The official, who declined to allow the use of his name, spoke as the Postal Service filed a brief with the independent Postal Rate Commission urging it to reject the recommendations of its administrative law judge, Seymour Wenner.

As the business mailers desert the Postal Service, a greater portion of the service's fixed costs would be borne by the first-class mailer, according to this scenario.

"In anything other than the short run, the average first-class mailer is going to pay more," he said.

The Postal Rate Commission will hold hearings starting July 7 on Wenner's recommendations. A final ruling will be issued later in the summer.

Whatever the commission decides, the Postal Service is expected to impose a temporary rate increase later in the year.

Callaway chosen to head Ford's 1976 campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced today he has chosen Georgia Republican Howard "Bo" Callaway, who now serves as secretary of the Army, to manage his 1976 presidential campaign.

Through White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, Ford also disclosed he will file by Friday documents with the Federal Election Commission formally establishing his own campaign committee.

Nessen said the filing will list former GOP National Chairman Dean Burch as campaign committee chairman, but he said Burch will hold the post for only two or three weeks until Callaway severs his connections with the Army.

Burch, a conservative Republican from Arizona, will continue to head an advisory committee in the Ford campaign, Nessen said.

The White House spokesman said the President formally would declare his candidacy for election "sometime within the next few weeks." He said the time and place had not been determined but that Ford would do so "before television cameras."

Callaway was a congressman from Georgia in 1965-67, surrendering his seat when he made an unsuccessful bid for election as governor. He has been secretary of the Army since mid-1973.

Nessen said Ford's campaign committee was being established at this time in order to comply with the new federal election financing law and to provide a vehicle for fund-raising and for the payment of expenses for the President's planned political travels in the months ahead.

Vote probe evidence to grand jury June 26

A special grand jury will meet in Dixon on June 26 to consider evidence gathered in an absentee vote probe here stemming from the April 15 city election.

The order recalling the grand jury was signed this morning by Circuit Judge John Rapp Jr., Mt. Carroll. The petition to call the jurors was taken to Mt. Carroll by Brian David, one of two special prosecutors from the Illinois Attorney General's office.

Both David and Charles Levad were appointed to the case at the request of Lee County State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward. Evidence was expected to be presented to the grand jury against as many as 15 persons believed involved in absentee voting irregularities.

The investigation was launched on election day as Ward called out a police task force to comb the city voting precincts and check with persons who voted absentee. Two city commissioner candidates, Arthur Tofte and Rich Arnold, lodged a complaint with Ward concerning the high number of absentee ballots being taken from the City Clerk's office.

A check with voting records at City Hall determined that 515 ballots had been taken out, compared with 51 in the last city election.

Included in the absentee voting form is an oath signed by voters which says the person plans to be out of town and unable to vote in person on election day.

The thrust of the investigation has been geared to campaign workers and certain candidates, believed involved in procuring the absentee ballots under false pretense.

Interpol world's protective agency

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Interpol is one of the international organizations of enormous benefit to our anxious world. But who would know it?

Today we're all so prepared for the worst, so used to disasters, so hardened against inefficiency, that millions assume all international organizations are suspect. In these worrisome times of change, it's good to have something that doesn't. And that's Interpol.

Interpol's official name is the International Criminal Police Organization. But it is a network, not a police organization within itself.

It is an old rule of bureaucratic overspending that what goes up must go further. Interpol defies bureaucracy with practically no budget. Governments everywhere send out lots of pieces of paper—it's in the nature of the beast. But Interpol operates with thrilling efficiency, and even less publicity, throughout the free world.

Interpol's headquarters are in the Paris suburb of St. Clou, but its operational headquarters are in Bern, Switzerland, and 89 subscribing countries finance it.

Each country's chief law-enforcement officer is tied in with Paris and Bern. In the case of the United States, it is the U.S. Treasury Department, in England it's Scotland Yard's crack Special Section, and in France the DST Security Police, responsible for checking on Frenchmen and aliens. And so it goes.

Such representatives meet annually at an Interpol convention. The police services not only of each nation but of every city in it constitute the Interpol network.

In the world's society, violence is endemic and perhaps epidemic. The laws are inadequate. The forces of law are still more inadequate. The effect spreads as trust declines. Interpol is the silent protective agency reaching out systematically to the free world.

We have 80 extradition treaties (reciprocal), including one with Switzerland that I officially negotiated as American ambassador to Switzerland. Each of the 80 is somewhat different, but Interpol handles them all.

From Bern, Interpol itself operates 20 radio stations and computer information exchange centers strategically located on every continent. These distribute physical descriptions, fingerprints, tips and warnings around the clock.

Inside Interpol a Blue is a code request for information. A Green means to place under surveillance. A Gray requires a "constant watch." This means knowing a suspect's whereabouts but not watching him all the time. A Black reports an unidentified corpse.

For example, Brazil will flash Bern if any Brazilian crime has international angles. Within moments Bern has informed all selected free-world areas. The countries that can shed any light on the crime through their police records or otherwise report back to Bern. These contributions are skillfully coordinated there and wirelessly to Brazil.

Take the example of how Interpol combats the horrible international dope traffic. Chinese heroin costing $800 a pound brings at least $15,000 a pound in our country. A single seizure of 209 cut pounds in a Columbus, Ga., trailer camp would have brought more than $10 million on New York's streets.

Castro's Cuba—operationally the P.U.R.S., Cuba's Communist party director— is Red China's No. 1 relay station in our hemisphere. Both Peking and Havana get immense hard-currency rewards from their ghastly traffic. But, thanks to Interpol, three carriers en route from Rangoon, Burma, to Mexico City were caught recently in Zurich.

They carried $4 million in cut heroin and $200,000 in cash (for bribes) in a single suitcase. They were sentenced to 15 years in a Swiss penitentiary. And through Interpol, the South African police seized in transit last year 1.7 million pounds of narcotics and initiated 2,000 worldwide arrests.

This is always straight police work, never espionage, because of espionage's international political implications.

I have seen innumerable cases which first looked like independent crimes and then passed into the dark world of espionage, where the hidden battles of treachery are fought. Interpol had to drop them. Again and again when the American interest was concerned, this has seemed a dreadful pity, although obviously unavoidable.

Interpol functions magnificently, day and night. And this is a relief, like sliding into the lee of the land, out of the wind, out of the swing of today's violent sea.

S. Korea's enemy in backyard?

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—As a firm believer in the defense of South Korea against invasion from the North, it is clear to me that we must demand several preconditions of President Park as a price for our defense of his country.

South Korea is an independent country and has every right to refuse our conditions. But the United States, likewise, as an independent nation, has the right to withdraw troops and to cancel military commitments, if the presence of our forces and the wording of treaties threaten to lead us into a war without victory.

The basic conditions for our support must be:

First, that Park restore free speech and a free press in South Korea.

Second, that he restore open and free elections, without police coercion.

Third, that he immediately set in motion significant steps to lower financial corruption in government.

Fourth, that he cease using the police to hound his political opponents.

These are necessary conditions for military victory. As South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos have demonstrated, without a viable government backed by a unified people, the defense of a country is difficult in the extreme, even with U.S. military superiority.

My visits to Korea have convinced me the South has been and is unified in hatred for Communists, and that this hatred is strong throughout the social structure.

It is also true that almost all Koreans I've known have a strong passion for individuality and freedom. A continued democratic blackout of the type carried out by Park could destroy the will in the South and weaken the unity of South Koreans to fight vigorously even the ruthless enemy they know Kim Il Sung's communists to be.

The situation on Taiwan is different. Here the government founded by Chiang Kai-shek has made strong, successful efforts to widen participation in public office and to narrow the economic gap between the top 20 per cent of the people and the lowest 40 per cent. That is, the government of Taiwan and its economy seem to be moving toward democracy in the broad sense, making it defensible with reasonable assistance from the U.S.

Korea, likewise, had been making remarkable economic progress, and had in recent years achieved a significant broadening of income. But, by contrast, Park has of late shut off one democratic right after another.

The clampdown did not begin with the loss of Cambodia, South Vietnam and Laos. I remember arguing this point with some of Park's closest advisers years back. They were convinced then, as now, that only strength from above could insure South Korea's progress and defense.

The threat from the North is real. I have been privileged to see a significant amount of the documentary evidence and to talk first hand with former North Korean agents. If I were a South Korean, I would argue for a very strong defense and constant readiness. But the threat to South Vietnam, to Cambodia and to Laos from Hanoi was equally great, obviously. In spite of the common enemy, defenses were weakened by problems within.

Geography makes South Korea easier to defend than Vietnam. The country is more suited to U.S.-type conventional war than Southeast Asia. But the mood of Congress after the debacle in Vietnam is such that support would be minimal for a government operated as Park governs South Korea today.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

The annual summer recreation program sponsored by the Dixon Park Board starts Monday at five parks, according to the program director. The program is open to all Dixon children between 5 and 15 years old. Instructors will be at the parks from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday.

The Dixon State School has openings for 100 new employees. Vacancies are to be filled on the professional, sub-professional, and semi-skilled levels.

25 YEARS AGO

The population of Dixon proper increased by 861 people (8 per cent) between 1940 and 1950, according to figures released by the Rockford census office today.

Eighteen members of the 1930 class of Dixon High School still have not been located to be notified of the reunion July 13 in Rainbow Inn.

50 YEARS AGO

A Buick standard six touring car, which departed unheralded from New York City last December, to be driven from one Buick dealer to another in a trip around the world, passed through Dixon today. The local Buick dealer climbed in behind the wheel this morning and drove it to Rochelle.

SHORT RIBS

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The birth of a bureaucracy is always chaos to behold, or to endure for that matter, but some sort of new standard for turbidity must be emerging as the Federal Elections Commission continues to try to break out of an egg laid last year. Talk about bemusement in Washington. As a FEC secretary said the other afternoon while she surveyed the confusion in the agency, "Doesn't anybody here know what's going on?"

The commission was created by Congress during the 93rd session along with passage of the Federal Campaign Practices Act. Its assigned task: to monitor the raising and spending of campaign funds in all future federal elections. Thus far it has monitored nothing but its own disorientation; "If elections were handled like this agency has been handled," says a young staffer, "the U.S. would still be trying to choose between Lincoln and Douglas."

To begin with, explains commission chairman Tom Curtis, a former nine-term congressman from Missouri, "there was a delay in setting us up." A five-month delay, actually. Congress wanted the agency operational last January, but authorities did not get around to installing the cadre (six commissioners) until April, and the first secretary was not hired until May. Since then, as the ways say and not entirely in jest, everything has more or less been going downhill.

No sooner had some progress been made concerning staff than a dismissed Curtis discovered that "somehow Congress had forgotten to appropriate our funds." So before anyone could turn their attention to charter responsibilities the commission had to first beg for capital. The administration said $500,000 would be enough to get started, Curtis yelled and countered the $1,349,000 was vital. The commission was awarded the smaller figure, and befitting the muddle, the sum was raised as part of a supplemental appropriations bill for the Agriculture Department. Agriculture Department? "Don't ask why," grumps a commission aide, "God only knows."

Funded at last, and slowly picking up employees, agency officers then realized that the suite chosen to house them was inadequate. Nobody knows how many employees will eventually be hired, the guess is between 140 and 200, but what with files and other paraphernalia a single floor in a relatively small building in downtown Washington was determined to be most impossible.

Thus Curtis, begging again, has requested acquisition of the floor above and the floor below the present suite. Yet even if he gets them, he says, the site may still have to be abandoned. The phone system is not satisfactory for one thing, therefore the possibility is that just about the time the entire agency moves in it will have to move back out.

At that, the question of commission location holds no immediate crisis. Because there are far greater problems for the FEC to confront—survival, for instance. The original legislation established the agency's life only through the fiscal year, and so, technically, it goes out of business two months after going into business: on June 30. Curtis says extension is routine. But he's preparing all arguments and evidence for Congress, just in case.

Even with extension, moreover, the commission's prognosis is not cheery. The campaign practices act, which brought it into being is under challenge in the courts as unconstitutional—opponents say it violates as many as 100 democratic principles, including separation of powers. Thus, were judges to agree in the negative, the FEC, in essence a law enforcement body, might be left without a law to enforce. In that case, says Curtis, who is rinsing his hair which under the circumstances is understandable, "We'd be out on our ear."

Naturally enough, nobody at the FEC likes to muse much about what may happen or, too, what has happened to their agency. The time is now, the windows need washing, the desks are yet to be arranged, cockroaches are in the corners and nobody can find a typewriter eraser. About all anyone can do is try to muddle through.

Including Commissioner Tom Curtis. During his confirmation hearings he was asked, as a former congressman, if he would have personally voted for the campaign practices act which created his agency. He said no. There is very little reason to believe he's changed his mind.

Namath really likes panty hose?

By DON OAKLEY

Advertising isn't expected to change very much as a result of a set of new guidelines just promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission. Consumers may still be subjected to some of the more offensive product-plugging, both in print and via the radio and television waves.

But thanks to the agency, consumers in the future will have the assurance that the "expert" touting this or that product really does possess the implied qualifications. Tests claimed to have been conducted must really have been made, and endorsements by organizations must be bonafide endorsements reflecting "the collective judgment of the organization." Either that or the advertiser is subject to legal action.

These requirements became effective immediately. At the same time, however, the FTC proposed others which may or may not go into effect until the end of July, pending comment from industry and the public, and at least one of which would seem to carry "truth in advertising" into a rather nettlesome thicket.

This is the proposal that people endorsing a product—especially well-known personalities—must actually be users of the product. The star who recommends a brand of coffee must actually drink it regularly. The athlete who swears by a certain breakfast cereal must actually eat the stuff.

Now it shouldn't be too difficult for an advertiser to keep on file a signed statement by a celebrity testifying that he really, truly does eat, drink, wear, wash with, etc., the product in question, thus presumably satisfying the government bird dogs.

Come to think of it, advertisers should welcome this. It would add that much more to the celebrity's persuasiveness and influence over consumers, which the FTC is so concerned about. But what may be true at the time an endorsement is made may not necessarily be true for all time to come. People's tastes and habits change, and celebrities are people, too.

Men, for instance, are endlessly trying different razors or blades or creams in search of the perfect shave. "New improved" versions of everything from underarm deodorants to remedies for those annoying, itching what-have-yous are constantly being brought on the market.

Not only that, but reruns of commercials seem to go on forever. Will some poor guy be forced to slog away each morning at the Munchies he may once have liked but has come to detest? Will he have to get permission from the FTC to change brands, or make a public confession of his fickleness?

And who, anyway, is going to look into his private life to see if he really, truly did eat, drink, wear, wash with, etc., the product in the first place?

Merchants opposed the Stamp Act

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth in a series of articles on the American Revolution for the Bicentennial year prepared by the American Antiquarian Society in cooperation with the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation.

By DR. FRANCIS G. WALETT
Worcester State College

English merchants and tradesmen were quick to realize that the Stamp Act dispute with the colonies had ominous implications for them. Riots and political arguments meant an interruption of business; nonimportation and nonconsumption agreements would inevitably hurt profitable trade with North America.

British merchants were opposed to the Stamp tax. But their voices had not prevailed when the ministry of George Grenville pushed this measure through Parliament with a large majority in March 1765.

Few, if any, anticipated the reaction of America. But the riots against stamp distributors, loud protests against the Stamp Act's constitutionality, and strong economic pressures combined to change the thinking of many Britons. Not the least of influences was the agitation of British merchants themselves.

Traders and manufacturers learned about non-importation and nonconsumption agreements from American newspapers and business associates, but even before this they began to organize themselves in order to force a repeal of the Stamp Act. In December 1765 London merchants formed a committee to mobilize opinions and deluge Parliament with petitions.

Barlow Trecothick, chairman of the committee, met with the Marquis of Rockingham (head of the new ministry) to explain the merchants' position. Trecothick then drafted a circular letter to some thirty trading and manufacturing towns in Great Britain. He called attention to the distressing consequences of loss of the North American trade and the necessity of working together to promote "the Prosperity of Trade and Manufactures."

The result was not slow in coming. Parliament received many petitions from numerous cities, whose merchants and manufacturers declared that the Stamp Act would have a ruinous effect on them. In an address to the House of Commons, London merchants pointed out that they had "annually exported very large quantities of British manufactures" to North America; and that this trade "so beneficial to the State, and so necessary for the Support of Multitudes, now lies under such Difficulties and Discouragements, that nothing less than utter ruin is apprehended."

Praying for relief from economic miseries, the merchants had little concern with arguments about the constitutionality of the Stamp Act. Not so with the Marquis of Rockingham.

Entirely willing to listen to the pleas of the merchants, the ministry was faced with the ugly fact that the colonists had challenged the right of Parliament to enact the Stamp tax.

Although he was sympathetic to the wishes of the merchants, Rockingham was also sensitive to the feeling of most Britons that the authority of Parliament over the colonies had to be upheld.

The problem was— to put it succinctly— how could the grievances of the merchants be redressed, and the honor of Parliament sustained at the same time?

Deluged with demands that the Stamp Act be repealed, and confronted by the fact that rebellious colonists had nullified the measure, the ministry reached a decision in January 1766. Repeal of the Stamp Act was agreed to, but it must be accompanied by a strong assertion of the power of Parliament.

The wheels of government turned very slowly in early 1766 for the unhappy Rockingham ministry. Pressures on the government mounted as the merchants demanded repeal; angry newspaper writers sharply criticized the ministry for not upholding the law; in full oratorical splendor William Pitt thundered in the House of Commons, "I rejoice that America has resisted"; and colonial agents (especially Benjamin Franklin) testified that the colonists did not have enough money to pay the Stamp tax for a single year.

A bill for the repeal of the Stamp Act passed in March 1766, but, in another measure, the Declaratory Act, Parliament asserted that it had full authority to pass laws for America "in all cases whatsoever."

No one paid much attention to the Declaratory Act.

Unbounded joy was expressed by the colonists when they got news of the repeal. The happiness of the London merchants was hardly any less, as can be seen in the accompanying cartoon.

This engraving is a satirical British cartoon published in London in 1766. In the funeral procession of "Miss America-Stamp" the grief-stricken figure carrying the coffin is George Grenville, the author of the Stamp Act which died so young. Flags, symbols, inscriptions and skulls refer to earlier events or enactments which were "All of a Stamp." Along the Thames are warehouses filled with goods which grateful merchants (now that the Stamp Act had been repealed) expected to ship to the American colonies. Vessels that are pictured bear the names of the ministers, Lord Rockingham, the Duke of Grafton, and H. Seymour Conway, who had worked strenuously for the repeal of the Stamp Act. The arts of engraving and cartooning were generally more advanced in England than in the colonies. In an era when newspapers and other printed matter were mostly devoid of much illustrative material, engravings such as this added graphic appeal to life.

Rhode Island's resistance to colonial regulations, which foreshadowed the Revolution, began as early as June 1765 with an attack on the British ship "Maidstone" in Newport harbor. In 1769 the British revenue sloop "Liberty" was scuttled and in June 1772, the "Gaspee" was burned off Warwick. Rhode Island raised 1,500 troops immediately after Lexington, and on May 4, 1776, declared her independence from Great Britain. The World Almanac notes.

Miss McNichols weds Mr. Smoot

The First Presbyterian Church was the setting for the recent afternoon wedding of Miss Dinah McNichols, daughter of Mrs. William Arthur McNichols Jr., and the late Dr. W. A. McNichols, to Robert Tyler Smoot, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Daniel Kurz Smoot, McLean, Va.

The Rev. James G. Armour, pastor of the church, performed the double ring ceremony before a candlelit altar decorated with an arrangement of bridal wreath and white peonies. The church pews along with the white carpeted aisle were decorated with garlands of white spirea attached by white ribbon bows. Miss Alice Thompson was the organist for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Daniel Frank Tack, wore an heirloom gown worn by her late father's sister. The ivory tissue satin gown was styled with a tight fitting bodice, short sleeves and a long train. She wore a coronet of pearl and bead embroidered satin matching the bodice of her gown along with a finger tip veil of silk illusion. As the bride was escorted to the altar, she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis and white butterfly roses with ivy strands.

Miss Elaine Vedette Tack, Honeoye Falls, N.Y., served as the maid of honor and was attired in a apricot voile gown styled with a wide v-neck with a self ruffled edge of ecru lace. She carried a French bouquet of pastel painted daisies and ivy and wore an ivy headband of matching pastel painted daisies.

Serving as bridesmaids were Misses Linda and Leslie Tack, Mrs. Ivan Brown, McLean, Va., a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Sally Scott, St. Petersburg, Fla. The bridesmaids wore gowns styled like the maid of honor in pastel shades of pink, green, blue and violet and carried French bouquets of ivy and painted daisies while wearing a band of ivy and painted daisies in their hair.

Miss Ashley Patience Johnson, Redwood City, Calif., was the flower girl and wore a short white full-skirted dress, edged with blue embroidery and carried a small bouquet of daisies. She also wore a headband of ivy and painted daisies.

J. Daniel Smoot Jr., McLean, Va., served as his brother's best man. Ushers for the ceremony were William Arthur McNichols III and Michael Dirk McNichols, both brothers of the bride; Calder Smoot and Craig

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT TYLER SMOOT

A rehearsal dinner was given by the groom's parents at the Dixon Country Club. The bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Tack, entertained at a wedding breakfast in the Ramada Inn. Another aunt and uncle of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. James N. Johnson, hosted a breakfast the morning following the wedding ceremony.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Your sudden departure into "household hints" seemed somewhat inappropriate. Maybe you did it because you saw an opportunity to toss in a little behavioral science.

A reader asked how to slice onions without crying. You told her to keep her mouth shut. Then you added, "That's good advice, even if you aren't slicing onions."

Well, I took your advice and cried anyway. I then called my mother-in-law and told her that Ann Landers's household hint on onion-slicing didn't work. She suggested a real fail-safe trick she learned from her grandmother. Please pass it on, Ann.

To keep dry-eyed while slicing onions, always cut the root end off first and continue from that end. — Smiley Smith

Dear Smiley: Ordinarily I am not in the kitchen slicing onions, but after that lousy advice I gave about ironing bedsheets and towels, I decided to do some personal research.

I just followed your mother-in-law's advice and cut a large Bermuda onion per her instructions. My eyes are now so red and swollen I can barely see to type this answer. Also my nose is running. Give my regards to your mother-in-law.

Dear Ann: I'm a 13-year-old girl who has lived through a lot. Ever since my parents were divorced (six months ago) I can't get over it.

My father loves me and I love him, but my mother won't let me see him. I beg, cry and throw things but it doesn't do any good. Once I asked her, "Why can't I see Dad?" and she screamed, "You just can't let a single day go by without mentioning that skunk, can you? Get it through your head that you can't see him because of the rotten way he treated me."

Can you help, Ann? — Miss Him Like Crazy

Dear Miss: I wish I could — but unfortunately there are some unanswered questions that need to be answered.

Did the court give your dad visiting privileges? If not, why? Has your dad made an effort to see you?

You probably know the name of the attorney who handled your mother's divorce. I suggest that you contact him and tell him how you feel. He might be able to solve your problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that when a man marries for the second time — or the third or fourth — he can wear anything he wants, but when a woman has had even one previous marriage she is told that a white gown and veil is in "poor taste"? How come? Who made up those cockeyed rules? Other women, no doubt. Men couldn't care less.

Does the pastel dress (you recommend) serve as a symbol that the bride is tainted? Why can't she look like a brand new bride on her wedding day even though she has been married before?

This is just one of the cruel, barbaric customs that has kept women subservient. Moreover, it's the brand of narrow thinking that will keep women down forever. You, Ann Landers, with your archaic advice don't help much. — Irate In Illinois

Dear II.: Sorry, dear, but one just doesn't kick centuries of tradition in the teeth. The bridal veil and the white gown are for the first time around.

If a divorcee (or widow) wants to wear the ceremonial garb, no one will arrest her. But if IS in poor taste and unless a woman has a pretty tough hide, I don't recommend it.

Miss Rogers, Mr. Walker to wed

MISS GAYLA ROGERS

The engagement of Miss Gayla Rogers, daughter of Mrs. Wilma Rogers, Dixon, and the late Howard Rogers, to Terry Walker, son of the Earl Walkers, Rochelle, has been announced by the bride-elect's mother.

Miss Rogers, a 1973 graduate of Dixon High School, is employed by the Rochelle Beacon.

Mr. Walker is a graduate of Rochelle Township High School. He also attended Northeast Missouri University and is presently employed by Law-son's Floor Covering.

The couple has planned their wedding Aug. 10.

Red flags signal marital problems

By JOANNE KOCH

What's the difference between a marriage careening toward a crackup and a marriage riding out the ordinary crises of family life?

No American family can remain problem-free. The birth of a new child, the loss of a job, the move to a new town, the death of a family member — these are just a few normal crises that make for rough going.

But there are certain red flags that signal special marital difficulties. Dr. Michael Solomon, a psychiatrist and family therapist practicing in Denver, Colo., has identified three types of marital red flags.

"The simplest things to identify," claims Dr. Solomon, "are consistent arguments over what appear to be insignificant issues." The repeated fights over how to handle a child may be a warning that the child is about to be indoctrinated into the role of "spacer" or "buffer" between husband and wife.

Some children have more turbulent childhoods and create more conflict for parents. But if the mother and father have constant disputes over what to do about "Annie," perhaps Annie is just an excuse. Perhaps the real problems are in the marriage.

A second marital red flag goes up, according to Dr. Solomon, when people begin to see themselves as not lovable in relation to their family. He calls this the "lovability factor." That unlovable feeling does not mean that the person is actually impossible to love. It means something in the family interactions isn't filling that person's need for approval. If means something needs changing in the way family members behave.

Another danger sign more difficult to perceive is avoidance. Dr. Solomon notes an amazing number of ways by which families can remain together and yet avoid each other. Sometimes they simply use the office or their jobs to avoid being at home. Sometimes the family "overrelates" to other people. They always have people around which means they never have the opportunity to be alone.

The television set is another convenient barrier for couples who would rather look away from each other. "Taking the TV out of the bedroom is one of the first recommendations made by marriage counselors and sex therapists." Families also avoid each other by managing to eat at different times, remaining silent during dinner or having the meal center on the "bad" manners of the children.

One couple who came to Dr. Solomon couldn't stand to be face to face because it made them feel so lonely. Just as in the song titled "Isn't It Lonely Together," this husband and wife found being together made them twice as lonely as being apart.

Some couples and families have resources for self-help. Other couples and families may want to gain the assistance of a reputable counselor in making changes. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

South trapped in 5-spade bid

By Oswald & James Jacoby
A trapper cuts a fine figure in the North woods. He is a miserable object at the bridge table.

North's opening bid was quite sound although in the minimum range and the spade response certainly didn't hurt it any. North might well have made the slightly optimistic jump to three spades, but he decided to make the conservative bid of just two.

This bid should have conveyed the message, "Place the contract if you can do so. If you want any further bid or bids from me you can invite game or slam and I will take action."

In response to that message, South jumped to four spades. As far as South knew he had placed the contract at game. However, North revalued his hand and decided to make one more bid. He cue bid hearts!

South had been trapped. He wanted no part of a slam and merely returned to five spades. North passed this and it was up to South to try to make 11 tricks instead of just 10.

Actually, six might make. Just place king and one spade in the East hand. Furthermore, five was a pretty good contract. It only went down because West was sitting in back of South with the king-jack and another trump.

This was unfortunate indeed, but it didn't make either North or South any happier. 18

Dixon family grows with foster children

By JUDY SCHMIDT

Jim and Linda Miller like kids—not necessarily in small doses.
Jim does administration work for the children's cottages as a unit director at the Dixon State School. He spends his day around children—working with them or for them.
Linda is employed by the Illinois Department of children and family services as a "homemaker." She spends up to 20 hours a week visiting present foster homes to coordinate the work to be done between them and the agency.

If a foster parent has a problem, they call Linda for advice or just to compare notes. Chances are that she's had a similar experience with one of the 16 foster children that they have shared their home with over the past 6 1/2 years.

The Millers are basically short-term foster parents. They may be called in the middle of the night to take a child for a few days or a few months. The children ranged in age from 1 year old to 17.

Presently the Millers do not have a foster child but their halls are far from silent.

In a very large and modest old home in Dixon, the family dinner table seats eight every evening for supper. Six bedrooms provide the necessary privacy for a family with six children and a playroom with rambunctious wallpaper and paint splatters on the floor tell you it's lived in.

Four of the children are adopted, two are not.

The pictures on the wall of the living room are hung low for a kid's-eye view.

The focal point in the room is a family portrait of the children, dressed up and smiling, taken on a day when it was agreeable to all of them.

The family is interracial. Being brothers and sisters is not unique to them.

Andy's 12, plays the saxophone and shares an interest in model railroad with his Dad. Together they are building a complete layout of HO-gauge trains and the entire family enjoys taking real train trips.

There have been frequent excursions to Union, Ill., to study the old steam engines; a vacation to Colorado via the railroad, and last year all eight of them plus two foster children rode the train to Wisconsin for a weekend.

Eric has a paper route, raises mice and takes piano lessons, and enjoys an informal ball game with his older brother and friends.

Rhonda, the oldest daughter, is a Girl Scout, also studies the piano and cares for her pet parakeet.

The number one cook around the Miller household is Lisa, a lively 10-year-old who will be going into the sixth grade.

Karen loves to ride her bike, go shopping with her Mom and "put on a happy face."

The baby of the group is Bruce, now 5 years old, whose only concern will be coping with kindergarten, come September.

Lisa and Karen share a bedroom and the others have their own but when a foster child needs a place to call home, Bruce or Rhonda move over and make room.

Jim and Linda decided seven years ago that though they were already the parents of two boys, their hearts and home were big enough to comfortably handle more. They wanted to have a large family and deeply felt the needs of children that were alone, so they applied to adopt.

The main office of the department of children and family services is in Rock Falls and they handle all adoption or foster-home procedures for Lee and Whiteside Counties. The agency would like to see more families like the Millers. With only a total of 50 foster homes between the two counties, there is still a great demand for good foster care in the area. Homes are especially needed for teenagers.

Florence Pennington, a social worker from Sterling, has worked with the Millers since their first application and helped bring Karen to them when she was 6 months old.

She has watched the events snowball over the years, after the adoption of Karen and then Bruce in 1970. In between, the foster children started coming in and Linda began working with the agency, planning meetings for foster parents and visiting their homes.

Then in 1972 they were finally able to adopt their two oldest girls, who had already spent a year and a half in their home as foster children.

Miss Pennington states that policies have loosened up in the last couple of years.

Foster parents now have first choice to adopt a child living with them where years ago an agency could move them to yet another home once they became adoptable.

Single persons are now eligible as foster or adoptive parents and there is not a set maximum age limit for applicants, as long as they are in good health. There is a minimum-age requirement of 21 years and a couple must be married for at least two years.

A subsidy program exists for persons who would adopt hard-to-place children. Similar to the foster-care allotment, a family is helped financially each month but the child is legally adopted by them. Children who are black, racially mixed or physically or mentally handicapped are often hard to place.

Also, white children who have reached school age, or siblings, would come under this program. It's beneficial for both sides and enables a family that desires more children to have them without financial problems.

Miss Pennington says there isn't one particular feature that the agency looks for, but rather a combination of things.

A relaxed atmosphere makes happy parents, thus happy children.

A household like the Millers has all the attributes of such a place.

Tolerance mixed with sandy floors, compassion for bandaged knees, understanding about tear-stained Teddy bears, laughter and love.

The two were brought to the Public Safety Building where the girl was released to the custody of her Oak Park father and Hurdle was placed in jail on charges of having no valid drivers license and improper use of registration.

Further checking by police into the cars' registration and Florida license plate revealed the car to be stolen and the plates borrowed from a Florida woman.

SO YOU DON'T LIKE TO PLAN OR REVIEW

It is human nature to avoid the reality that a person is going to die. Yet, everyone knows it will come to pass; therefore, whether one plans or not, one's assets will be passed on to other people and the government will take a certain percentage of one's estate for taxes.

If an estate has a value at death of over $120,000, how can a person reduce taxes? Some of the most common methods are as follows:

1. If a person is married, a marital deduction provision in one's will will transfer one-half of a person's estate to his or her spouse free of federal estate tax.
2. Gifts given before death will reduce the value of the estate, and they escape federal estate tax, although there may be a gift tax.

3. Assets can be put into a trust, again reducing the value of the estate.

4. Assets could be given to charities. Those given to qualified charities escape federal estate tax.

5. Provisions can be drafted giving other persons special powers of appointment which give someone power to act but not obtain the money or property for his own benefit.

6. Provisions can be drafted in a will allowing parties to renounce taking money from a person's estate.

7. Insurance ownership can be transferred to children so that the proceeds at time of death will not be taxed to the person who dies, the reason being that the deceased no longer owns the policy.

8. Annuities as a form of guaranteed income can reduce taxes because of favorable Internal Revenue Code treatment.

9. Business interests can be reorganized so that appreciation in value is being augmented in your heirs' estates rather than in your own.

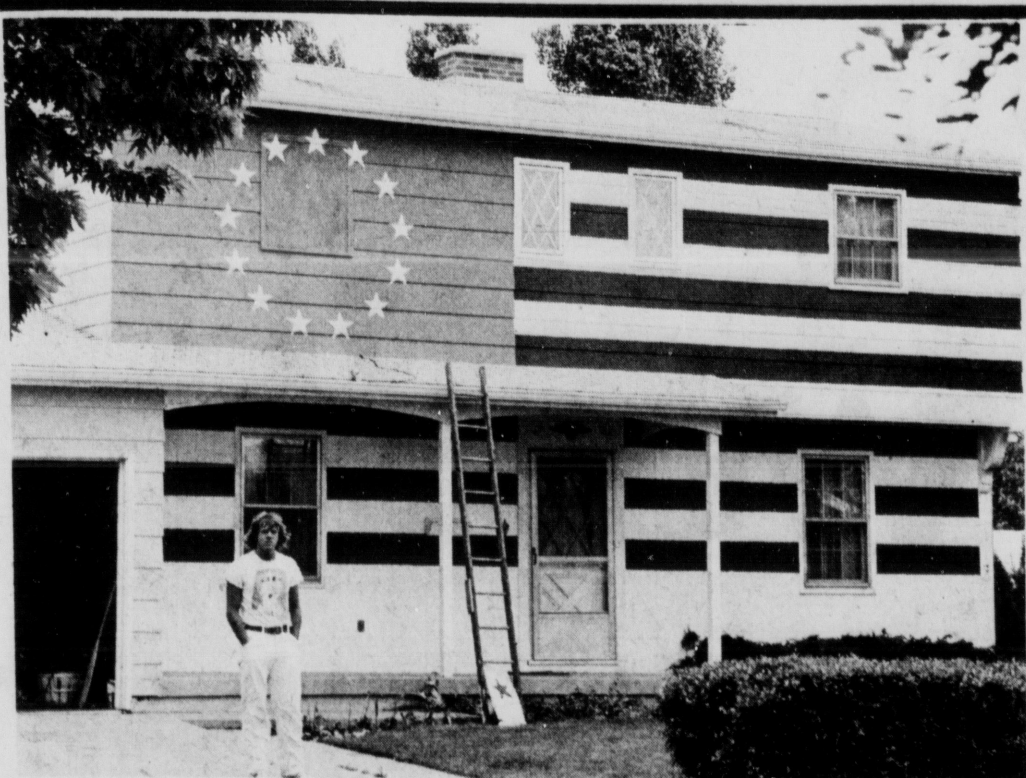

There is more to formulating objectives than just reducing taxes. Other aspects discussed with your financial and legal advisers are:

1. Will there be enough cash at the time of death in order to pay taxes, costs, and to meet the needs of the family so that the business or farm will not have to be sold?

2. What will it cost to administer an estate? In the State of Illinois, fees for the executor and legal counsel are determined by the courts. Generally, administration of an estate could be as costly as 5 per cent of the gross estate. If one plans carefully, ways can be determined to simplify administration and reduce the cost of probate.

3. Will there be a need for someone to help with the management of the assets? Often in a business the wife or children have not had the Northern Illinois University administrator Ken Beasley and his family took a brief vacation, entrusting their DeKalb home to son Jon, 20. When the Beasleys returned, they found Jon and friends had given the home a Bicentennial-style paint job. Appropriately, the 13-star flag was completed on Flag Day. Jon's mother is named Betsy, as in Ross.

Red, white and blue welcome for family

DEKALB— "See what kids will do when you go away?" asks Mrs. Kenneth L. Beasley, gesturing toward the giant red, white and blue American flag emblazoned across the front of the Beasley's two-story frame house here.

Appropriately, neighbors remark, Mrs. Beasley's parents had the foresight to name her Betsy, as in Ross.

"I'm really just mortified," she grimaces, then adding a smile. "There's just been a steady stream of people by here to look at it." Standing nearby, grinning broadly, is 20-year-old Jon Beasley, primary perpetrator and painter of the Great American Bicentennial Flag Painting Scheme.

His father, an assistant to the president at Northern Illinois University, has recovered enough to offer an amused, "I think it's kind of cool."

What made the flag painting possible, Jon recalls, was his parents' decision to take a brief camping trip to Kentucky last week, leaving him home with money for paint—avocado green paint—to cover the house.

Jon and his parents had been joking for months about painting the house red, white and blue for the nation's Bicentennial, but when they left on vacation, he asked his mother if he really could. She gave a very firm, "No way."

"At the paint store, they said they had a sale coming up later this month, so I decided to wait to buy the paint. I thought painting the flag would be spectacular, so we went ahead."

"We" included four neighborhood friends, all fellow collegians home for the summer. Spending only $9.50 for red and blue latex paint, and using white enamel left over from previous jobs, they began covering up the pea-soup green coating applied to the house in 1970.

The painting began Thursday, but because of repeated thunderstorms and summer-job obligations, most of the work was done at night, adding up to an estimated "60 to 80 man-hours." As the work progressed, neighbors began gathering to watch and when the first of 13 stars was spray-painted through a handmade stencil, "Everybody began to cheer," Jon beams with satisfaction.

By Saturday morning the flag was completed and Jon's parents were due to arrive home.

Someone told him it was Flag Day, but he refused to believe it, because "That was just too crazy."

"My parents were really shocked when they got home. My dad slumped over the steering wheel, shaking his head, like saying to himself, 'Oh, no.'"

A junior geology major at DePauw University in Greencastle, Ind., Jon believes the house flag is truly one of a kind and notes that so far he's heard no adverse reactions. "I'm sure some people disapprove, but all our neighbors said it looks nice."

Confirming that, Alfred Morse, who lives directly across Sunset Place from the Beasleys, comments: "I think it's all right. It looks good. They did a real good job on it, put in a lot of effort. But I don't think I'd want it on my house."

Bill Petty, the mail carrier for the area, adds, "I think it's great. I heard people all weekend asking, 'Have you seen the house on Sunset?'"

Jon, the oldest of four Beasley boys, notes the house was ideal for the flag, not only because it is faced with wood siding, but because it is close to exact proportions prescribed for American flags. The only change necessary was to put a wood panel over one bedroom window so the blue field and flags looked right, he adds.

"Steve Story was the main engineer in laying it out and Dave Ramer and I did most of the painting, with some help from Doug Newman and Barrett Corneille," Jon says. "While painting, we could hear cars going by, then screech to a stop when they saw what we were doing."

"I think my parents will have a Fourth of July party here because of it," he continues, and both parents do concede they'll let the flag "fly" probably at least until then, even if they have to follow appropriate flag protocol requiring illumination at night.

But, adds Betsy Beasley, "I guarantee that this house will be green by August."

10.58 pct. pay hikes for Amboy teachers

AMBOY— In a busy session that lasted until after midnight, Tuesday, the board of education set teacher salary schedules and approved pay hikes for non-certified personnel and administrators.

The teacher salary schedule adopted for the 1975-76 year provides pay hikes amounting to 10.58 per cent with a beginning salary set at $8,850 for teachers with a BA degree. Increments for various extra-curricular activities were set with athletic activities at the high school totaling $13,000 for the 1975-76 year, up $3,100 over last year; other high school activities $3,550, up $950 over last year; junior high and elementary athletics $5,150, up $600 over last year's budget; and for junior high and elementary activities $1,000, an increase of $50 over last year.

Pay hikes were granted for all non-certified personnel: secretaries 4 per cent increase; janitors, 10 per cent; bus drivers, 6 per cent, and cooks, 3 per cent. Administrators Dr. Don Skidmore, James Braida, Richard Bumba, Robert Keller and George Mason were granted pay hikes which averaged about 10 per cent.

Increments for those serving as head teachers at the various attendance centers will be set at the next meeting.

Melvin Stewart of the teacher committee reported that representatives of the Amboy Teachers Association had met with the board committee and the teachers had asked pay hikes totaling 13.72 per cent, or slightly more than 3 per cent over the salary schedule adopted by the board. Skidmore pointed out that the salary schedule adopted will result in deficit spending in the education budget next year.

The rate of $30 per day was set for substitute teachers with increments of $5 per day if substituting for 10 or more consecutive days.

Skidmore also reported that the Capital Development Board had approved remodeling of the junior High School building to meet Health-Life Safety Code standards with a grant of $1,040,520, with the state to fund about one-third of this amount. The money is available in capital development funds, if Governor Dan Walker will release the money. Skidmore said the board should be informed by late July or early August if the state money will be available. A special meeting was set for Aug. 5 to prepare for a referendum to issue bonds for the local share of the project. A period of 90 days will be allowed for the voters to approve the issuing of bonds.

Teacher resignations were accepted: Tom Whitney, high school; Tom Coffey, junior high school, and Mrs. Bonnie Albrecht, Central School. A one-semester leave of absence was granted to Mrs. Kathy Scriven, Walton kindergarten teacher, and a request for a one-year leave for Richard Vivian, art teacher, was denied.

New contracts were approved: Miss Therese Elliott, high school physical education and English, at $8,880; Daryl Stuckemeyer, agriculture, a graduate of Illinois State University with five years experience, at $10,240; to Kirsten Powell, speech therapist, at $9,730; to Rebecca Baker, elementary teacher at $9,200; to Gwen Ehmen, at $9,200 and Darrell Hanson, $9,200; all are second-year teachers at elementary level.

Also approved was a request to use a school bus to transport 16 youths to basketball camp at Rock Island with each student to pay $2 for the round trip.

Bills in the following amounts were certified for payment: $412,098 from education fund; $82,069, building fund; $54,271, bond and interest; $27,492 from transportation; $11,266 for Illinois Municipal Retirement, and $55,000 from working cash fund; total, $642,198. Some $500,000 of this amount represents investment of school funds.

Two bids were received for the sale of a 48-passenger 1962 school bus with the highest bidder being Kenneth Flanagan for $251.

Clint Conway, director of Lee County Special Education, presented a certificate of appreciation to Howard Bothe, who had served for two years as president of governing board of Lee County Special Education Association.

High School Principal James Braida announced the blue driver-education slips have arrived. The students may pick them up at the school office from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

JOE BODMER

Bodmer ends 30 years as trustee in Steward

STEWART — After serving the Steward community as a village board trustee for the past 30 years, Joe Bodmer has decided to retire because he thought he had served long enough and to give some of the younger people in Steward a chance to run for the office.

When Bodmer started, Frank Hewitt was serving as mayor, with other board members including Tom Daum, Charles Hare, Jim Daum, Harlen Strawbridge, Orville Byrd and Millard Fell. The biggest problem at that time was the lack of funds to help keep Steward going.

Many improvements have been made in the village over the past 30 years. The streets have changed from gravel to black top, new street lights, a new water well, street signs have been erected, the Ogle-Lee Fire Department has been organized and many new homes have been built.

Mr. and Mrs. Bodmer, who have a son, Charles, moved from a farm by Paw Paw 35 years ago. Bodmer has since retired after being employed by Stoneridge Limestone of rural Steward for 26 years.

Three years ago he took up the hobby of bottle cutting and has made many vases with the desire to someday make a lamp out of cut beer bottles. Mrs. Bodmer said they find most bottles and containers useful for making something and have a large assortment saved for the future, and is very proud of a vase, made by her husband, out of a Wesson oil bottle.

Two Nelson teachers resign

NELSON— The resignations of two teachers at the Nelson Grade School were approved Tuesday night at the Nelson School Board meeting.

Approved were the resignations of Mrs. Nancy Bois, third and fourth grade teacher, and Mrs. Rebecca Weeg, music instructor.

In other action the board discussed the replacement of the janitor at the Nelson School but no appointment was made. Board members also discussed hiring a man to mow the school lawn.

Board members announced school would begin August 25, and book rental for first through eighth grade students was set at $10 with a $5 fee for kindergarten students.

Bills totaling $13,430.41 were approved for payment and $15,000 in tax distribution funds were received.

Amboy Council awards street paving contract

AMBOY — Members of the city council approved a bid to resurface of some 21 blocks of city streets at an adjourned session held Tuesday night in the City Hall.

The only bid on the project was from Ladd Construction Company for $17,944.20. The contract was awarded to Ladd with work to start in mid July.

There was discussion of means of financing the city's share of the proposed updating of the city sewage treatment facility. A financial consulting firm will be employed to handle necessary planning for a referendum on a bond issue.

In other business permission was granted to the trustees of Pankhurst Memorial Library to construct a parking lot on the north side of the building for library patrons. The city street department will loan a truck for hauling of gravel for the project.

Mayor Kenneth McCracken designated the Bicentennial year with celebrations to be held July 18, 19, 20 this year and July 20, 21 and 22 in 1976. The members voted to purchase a Bicentennial flag to be flown from the flag pole in front of the city hall.

Attention was called to the problem of youths using the tennis courts at Green River City Park for a basketball court, and denying tennis players the use of it. Aldermen voted to have tennis players have the precedence for use of the courts which have been recently surfaced with blacktop.

Discrimination by sex is real

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sex discrimination in athletics is real, says the president of the National Student Association, and that's why new federal regulations need to be implemented immediately to put teeth into the law barring sex bias.

"All we want is equal opportunity," Kathy Kelly told a House education subcommittee Tuesday. "We don't want equal expenditures."

As an example, she cited some facts from the intercollegiate swimming program for men and women at the University of Minnesota, her alma mater.

The men practiced in a six-lane pool during the prime hours, six days a week, she said. Women used a 4½-lane pool four days a week. On the fifth, they could use the six-lane pool but only between 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m., after the men were finished.

She said the men had lane ropes, four pace clocks, pennants for backstrokers, starting blocks and three record boards. The women, she said, had none of this equipment, which is essential for training.

Each man had a locker, 30 women shared two lockers; men were given a practice and a meet suit, women were loaned a meet suit that had to be returned and had to buy two practice suits at $12; men were given a T-shirt, women purchased a $2.50 T-shirt; men were given $13 a day for food while traveling, women $5, she said.

She said men are given letter jackets and rings while women pay $26 for their jacket if they qualify.

Kelly testified before the House education subcommittee on the new regulations implementing Title IX, which prohibits sex discrimination in the nation's schools and colleges.

The new regulations, which go into effect July 21 unless Congress rejects them, require equal treatment for males and females in gym classes, vocational training, financial aid, faculty hiring and many other activities, especially athletics.

Darrell Royal, University of Texas coach and president of the American Football Coaches Association, and seven of his colleagues urged a moratorium on implementing the regulations until an economic study could be done on their impact on intercollegiate athletics.

Trevino is positive

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — The Medina Country Club's No. 3 course measures 7,132 soggy yards, but the 75th U.S. Open this weekend will be won, insists Lee Trevino, in the six-inch space between the ears.

"It's all psychic," the ebullient Mexican-American said. "The Open, more than any other tournament. That's why I like to play in this one. About 90 per cent of the guys psych themselves out of it before they ever tee up the ball."

The 35-year-old one-time fairway hustler from El Paso, Tex., is fit and feisty — his old garrulous self — as he takes lead on the title he won in 1968 and 1971.

Only one man is more highly regarded — that's Masters winner Jack Nicklaus — in the field of 150 which tees off Thursday over the oak-and-maple-lined layout where Sam Snead blew another one and Cary Middlecoff won in 1949. Nicklaus, bidding for the second leg of a professional Grand Slam that also includes the British Open and American PGA, is the tournament favorite at 6-1, followed by Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller at 8-1, and Gary Player, Hale Irwin and Tom Watson at 10-1.

If Trevino had his druthers, the tournament would come down the stretch Sunday with him and Nicklaus battling head to head.

"I like this head-to-head stuff," he said. "It's a comfortable feeling to know you only have to beat one man, even if that man is Jack Nicklaus, who is the best in the world."

"The Open is a chokers' tournament. Everybody chokes. When I start choking I psych myself up. I say to myself, 'Hell, one of us is going to win. It's going to be me.' I say, 'If I'm choking, he may be choking worse.'"

He personally has robbed Nicklaus of at least three majors — the two U.S. Opens he's won, with a playoff in 1971, and the British Open in 1972.

As Cubs rally to defeat Phillies

Hosley provides offense

CHICAGO (AP) — Tim Hosley, a catcher who has never before enjoyed the status of a regular in the major leagues, and Tom Detorre, a pitcher who keeps shuffling back from the minors with regularity, provided the heroics Tuesday in the Chicago Cubs' 9-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Hosley, the Cubs' "offensive" catcher, singled home a run in a six-run, fifth-inning uprising to wipe out a 5-0 Philadelphia lead and then crashed a two-run homer in the sixth to seal the triumph.

Detorre, who was sent down to Wichita during spring training and returned once before during the regular season only to be sent down again, came back Tuesday to work five innings of relief to pick up his first victory of the year.

"I didn't get here till 11 this morning," said Detorre, who was recalled Monday night.

It was plenty of time, since the game was delayed an hour and 20 minutes at the start because of rain. Detorre served Greg Luzinski his 14th homer in the top of the fifth and was nicked for an unearned run in the same frame before settling down to pitch one-hit ball the rest of the way as the Cubs posted their sixth triumph over the Phillies this season against one loss.

Detorre took over from starter Dick Reuschel, who pitched the first four innings and retired from the game because of a blister.

Hosley has been in and out of the majors since 1970. In four previous seasons with Detroit and Oakland, he had appeared in a total of 39 games.

Hosley, who has now appeared in 22 games for the Cubs this season, also homered Monday when the Cubs came off a 5-1 deficit to defeat the Phillies 9-7.

Marshall indicated that when the Cubs are in need of hitting and go against teams that do not run, Hosley will catch. Otherwise it will be Steve Swisher.

"Let's be honest about it," said Marshall. "We have a situation where we have an offensive catcher and a defensive catcher. I'll have to make the decisions day by day as to who will start. Tim has really picked us up with his bat."

Most of the Cubs' offense came against starter Jim Lonborg, 6-4.

Hosley singled in the first run in the fifth inning and Detorre's bunt single loaded the bases for the Cubs. Kessinger then singled home two more runs.

Longborg retired the next batters before doubles by Jerry Morales and Pete LaCock, both of which eluded outfielders, put the Cubs ahead 2-1.

Manny Trillo opened the sixth with a single and Hosley followed with his homer to seal the verdict.

The Phillies did manage to stop Bill Madlock, who went into the game with a .367 average to lead the National League. Madlock was hitless in four trips.

The two teams meet again Wednesday in the third of the four-game series with Steve Stone, 5-1, going for the Cubs against Wayne Twitchell, 4-7.

Angry Morton gets victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Every time Carl Morton faces Cincinnati's National League West leaders, he sees Red.

"The only way to beat Cincinnati is to give it everything you have," says the Atlanta Braves right-hander. "That's the only way to beat the Reds — get mad at 'em."

Morton gave it everything — which means that he gave Cincinnati practically nothing — while winning a 5-1 decision while allowing three hits Tuesday night.

Dave May smashed a grand slam home run to back Morton's splendid pitching. Morton, 7-6, tantalized the Reds with an assortment of sliders and changeups, but lost his shutout in the ninth when Ken Griffey walked, Joe Morgan singled for his second hit of the game and Johnny Bench drove Griffey home with a double.

Cardinals 7, Pirates 4
Reggie Smith drove in three runs to power St. Louis over Pittsburgh. After scoring a run in the second inning on an error, the Cardinals scored four more in the fifth, two on Smith's single, for their eventual winning runs.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1
Andy Messersmith fired a four-hitter and Ron Cey slugged a three-run homer and Steve Yeager a solo shot to power Los Angeles past Houston, the Dodgers' third victory in four starts.

Giants 3, Padres 1
Rookie left-hander Pete Falcone scattered seven hits and San Francisco snapped a six-game losing streak by beating St. Louis. Falcone continually worked out of trouble to help the Giants snap a week-long slump.

Expos 6-2, Mets 5-5
Gary Carter drove in four runs, three with his seventh homer of the season, to lead Montreal's first-game victory over New York. The Mets won the nightcap with a three-run 11th inning as Mike Phillips tripled home the tie-breaking Ed Figueroa leaned forward, waiting for his signal from catcher Ellie Rodriguez. He didn't know it, but the Kansas City Royals were waiting for their signals, too.

A pause, then the windup. The pitch ... crack went the bat — a single for Vada Pinson. Crack went the bat, a single for George Brett.

"The Royals were picking up what our pitcher was going to throw in the early innings," explained California Angels Manager Dick Williams when it was too late to do anything about a 3-2 loss to Kansas City Tuesday night. "They were letting their batters know by whistling."

"We caught on about the fourth inning and then we put a stop to it," said Williams. But the Royals had their runs in the first inning and the Angels could manage only two in the ninth.

A's 4-8, Twins 2-7
Reggie Jackson smacked a 420-foot home run and a run-scoring double in the opener to back Vida Blue's 10th victory of the season and first victory in nearly three weeks.

Gene Tenace hit a bases-loaded double to drive in three runs during an eight-run Oakland fifth inning in the nightcap.

Brewers 4-2, Yankees 3-4
Ed Herrman's two-run homer in the ninth won the nightcap for the Yankees, who trailed 2-1 entering the inning. The Brewers had won the first game on an error by shortstop Jim Mason who — aside from hitting .142 — misplayed George Scott's pop fly with Robin Yount on third base.

Orioles 5, Indians 3
Elrod Hendricks raised his batting average 32 points to a prodigious .167 with three runs batted in — including a home run — in carrying Baltimore past Cleveland.

John Ellis was slumping on the field, throwing the ball into centerfield twice trying to get runners stealing on his arm. The misuses wasted a pair of Boog Powell home runs.

Sox win 13-3

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Someone jokingly suggested to Chicago skipper Chuck Tanner that he didn't have to do much managing Tuesday night in the White Sox' 13-3 cakewalk over the Texas Rangers.

"I guess not," smiled Tanner, "but I wasn't relaxing out there until right close to the end. The way that wind was blowing it wouldn't have been difficult for anyone to score a bunch of runs in a hurry."

That from a manager who had just seen his club score 13 runs, rake six opposing pitchers for 16 hits and reap the benefits of nine walks and three errors. Tanner was right about the wind, however. Throughout the three-hour and 13-minute game it ranged steadily between 12 and 18 miles per hour with occasional gusts up to 25 m.p.h.

"There isn't much you can say about a game like that," he said. "We were hitting the ball and things were going our way. It wasn't such a good night for them."

White Sox starter Jim Kaat, working with a 6-1 lead, had the Rangers stopped on three hits until he weakened in the seventh and required help from Rich Gossage.

"The wind bothered Kaat," said Tanner. "It was blowing him around and caused him to lose his rhythm. That plus the fact he did a lot of sitting around the dugout when we were batting and they were changing pitchers so often just took it out of him."

Rangers manager Billy Martin, who paraded his entire bullpen brigade to the mound in an attempt to halt the White Sox onslaught, had some harsh things to say about his hurlers.

"When you don't get good pitching you just look (bleep bleep)" he said. "And that's what happened to us tonight. Every time I brought a pitcher in it was just like pouring kerosene on a fire."

Deron Johnson got the White Sox off and running with a three-run homer, his ninth, off Rangers rookie Jim Umberger in the first inning. Bob Coluccio, Ken Henderson and Brian Downing each collected three hits for the White Sox and Carlos May chipped in with a pair of run-scoring singles.

The White Sox send lefty Claude Osteen, 1-6, against the Rangers' Ferguson Jenkins, 7-6, in the second game of the series tonight.

MOSTLY For MEN

by CHUCK FLYNN

For a holiday or Sunday leisurely breakfast I think you'll enjoy grillades with gravy, one of the early ways of cooking beef steak Southern style. The grillade describes an individual serving of top round steak.

To serve 4, select 1 1/2 pounds top round steak and cut into serving pieces, as square as possible. Pound with a meat mallet to break down the tissues, after sprinkling with salt, pepper and flour.

Put about 2 tablespoons shortening into a skillet and when hot brown the steaks on both sides, then set aside on a heated platter. In the same fat (add a little if needed) brown 2 small onions, peeled and sliced thin, then blend in 2 tablespoons flour, stirring until smooth, add 2 cups hot water, 1 teaspoon tomato catsup, a little cayenne pepper, and garlic powder as you like it.

Return browned steak pieces to the gravy, adjust seasoning with salt and pepper, cover tightly and simmer until meat is tender. This will take about 30 minutes, so check occasionally to see if more hot water should be added to the gravy.

For a more spicy gravy, proceed as indicated, but when you brown the onions, add a chopped green pepper and a clove of garlic, peeled and chopped. Then, when meat is returned to gravy, stir in 1 cup chopped canned tomatoes with the juice.

A good accompaniment for the grillades and gravy will be these Southern style potato pancakes. Peel potatoes, grate 2 cups and plunge into water, to prevent darkening.

In a mixing bowl stir together 2 well beaten eggs, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, several dashes of freshly ground pepper, and 2 tablespoons flour. Drain the potatoes and add to the batter.

Grease well a griddle or large skillet and when hot drop potato batter by spoonfuls, browning on both sides. Many chefs serve the pancakes with bowls of apple sauce or sour cream.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The literary and artistic talents of lawyer Francis Hopkinson of Bordentown N.J. brought him more acclaim than his political and legal activities, among them, signing the Declaration of Independence. Hopkinson's verse and satirical essays rank among the better literary efforts of the Revolutionary and early Federal periods, and he was one of America's first native composers. The World Almanac notes that Hopkinson's eldest son, Joseph (1770-1842), also a lawyer and jurist, wrote "Hail Columbia."

A story of Jesus sung and told by Johnny Cash

It's no easy task to tell the story of Christ's earthly ministry in a 63 minute motion picture. The story is such a far-reaching one—that spans all barriers with deep significance. How do you relate the reality of profound miracles on film? How do you show the struggles, the cutting pain, the incomprehensible love of One who overpowered death... by dying... for all men of all time? Maybe you can't tell the whole story. But you can tell a part of it—the part that means the most to you. Johnny Cash seems to make it all happen again—with music, with the scenic beauty of the land of Israel, with forceful characterizations of the men who lived the story—in the World Wide Pictures release, THE GOSPEL ROAD—the unfolding miracle that's still happening today!

For $5 he will fight your traffic ticket

HONOLULU (AP) — The newspaper advertisements look too good to be true: pay a one-time $5 fee to Motorists Inc. and never pay a traffic ticket fine again.

The man behind the idea is Clarence Shak, 53, a former electrical engineer who claims 8,000 clients for his 10-year-old enterprise. His drab walkup office is adorned with thousands of unanswered traffic citations. Shak says it's not a way to make a living but a crusade to overturn the nation's traffic violations system by exploiting legal and procedural weaknesses.

In Hawaii, as in other states, a driver receives a ticket from a policeman and unless he wants to contest it simply pays the fine prescribed for the offense. Shak rages against this:

"It's really no different than if you handed the police officer $10 to forget a violation, except that you hand it to the state instead."

Few motorists realize what a traffic ticket really is, Shak says.

"It's not a legal document," he says. "It's nothing more than a notification from the police officer that he intends to file a complaint against you for the alleged violation." Though traffic codes may appear to give the ticket the status of a court summons, Shak says that under the U.S. Constitution only judges can issue a summons. Under the Constitution, then, the motorist would be legally required only to respond to a court summons issued after failure to respond voluntarily to the citation.

The Hawaii Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union says it believes Shak's reasoning is sound but has no plans to challenge the legality of citations.

When motorists pay $5 to join

Motorists Inc., Shak guarantees that if they ever end up in court because of a traffic ticket he will pay the fine or compensation for any required court appearances and legal fees.

Over the past 10 years, Shak says, about 5 per cent of his clients had to show up in court and one-quarter of those eventually paid a fine.

The state Consumer Protector's Office says it hasn't had any complaints about Shak's operation.

How does the system work? In effect Shak is offering to cover a driver's bet that the government won't be able to prosecute successfully.

Shak counts on the normal administrative lapse of six months between the citation and the court summons. By that time the officer who gave the ticket may no longer be available to testify against a driver contesting the ticket or will have forgotten too much about the case to be a persuasive witness. "In many cases they can no longer positively identify the person they gave the ticket to," Shak says.

Thus the government may go to court with a weak case, or decide against pursuing the case at all. Government spokesmen had no comment on the disposition of cases in relation to Shak's theory.

Not surprisingly, officials disagree with this and with Shak's entire approach to traffic violations.

"He has the right to try anything he likes," says Tom Ikuda, administrator of the District Court Traffic Violation Bureau. "In fact I like him, and I think he's a very, very smart man."

Maj. Clifford Anderson, head of the Honolulu Police Department Traffic Division, defends the citation system as convenient:

"We issue traffic tickets instead of dragging each motorist down to the police station for booking, fingerprinting and bail."

Shak says that he has to subsidize Motorists Inc. by driving a cab. And he says that the enterprise hasn't always had the money to live up to its promises.

"For those people who had to pay their own (fine), we keep their record on file and have promised them we will pay them as soon as we get the money," Shak says.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-687: Luella G., aged 36, is the mother of three children.

"Dr. Crane," she mourned, "I fear my husband is beginning to look unduly long at attractive girls in his office."

"For he says I should go on your famous 10-day diet, though I am only 20 pounds heavier than when we were first married."

"And he also wants me to use more perfume and those diaphanous nighties that you often mention."

"But how can I compete with those young sirens when I have three children to keep me occupied all day long, plus my other duties of cooking, shopping, laundry, etc.?"

"Those single office girls have easy jobs at a typewriter, with nothing to worry about except applying their cosmetics to win husbands away from us devoted wives."

"How can we compete with them?"

Culinary Idolaters
You wives like Luella often are culinary idolaters!

That means you worship at the shrine of your cookstove and relish concocting literally dozens of new menus, though your hubby is content with meat, pie and coffee.

So quit blaming your kitchen slavery on your husband!

Instead, you wives enjoy being cooks!

Yet very few husbands ask you to keep eternally serving DIFFERENT menu items!

For the typical husband has a very limited range of food preferences but you wives will not heed his requests, for you really relish experimenting with cookbooks.

That's O.K. if you then spend even 10 per cent of that time and strategy concocting boudoir cheesecake!

At the dinner table, you are delighted to coax your mate into asking for a second helping of your roast beef or other gastric menu items.

But how many of you show half that interest in coaxing him to seek even a first helping of boudoir cheesecake?

Yet the sirens and paramours who entice your husbands into clandestine affairs, may not be able to fry an egg or perk coffee!

Even if you wives admittedly have many chores, plus several children, to preempt your full day, don't you still try to concoct roast beef and other tasty viands to tempt his compliments at the dinner table?

Well, your two or three hours at the kitchen stove will not cement your husband's affection as much as 10 minutes of boudoir cheesecake.

So PLEASE get hep to masculine psychology.

One reason why I write this daily column is to alert you devoted wives to the male attitude regarding sex.

For no woman can ever give you the true masculine outlook about marital problems.

You women know that, which is why you routinely rate this column tops on readers surveys, yet often accuse me of always taking the husband's side. I don't do so!

But I outline your own husband's attitude, so if you want to avoid a divorce or heartache at finding he has a paramour, you better get hep to masculine psychology!

Boudoir cheesecake beats all the delicious Betty Crocker concoctions at the kitchen stove if you wish to avoid divorce!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, June 18, the 169th day of 1975. There are 196 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1815, the British defeated Napoleon in the Battle of Waterloo in Belgium, ending the Napoleonic attempt to dominate Europe.

On this date — In 1778, in the Revolutionary War, colonial forces entered Philadelphia as the British withdrew.

In 1812, the United States declared war against Britain.

In 1896, a Republican National Convention in St. Louis nominated William McKinley for President.

In 1940, in World War 2, the Nazis captured the French port of Cherbourg.

In 1953, Egypt was proclaimed a republic, and Premier Mohammed Naguib became the first president.

In 1958, there was a controversy in Washington about gifts received by President Dwight Eisenhower's executive assistant, Sherman Adams.

Ten years ago: Air Vice Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky assumed office as Premier of South Vietnam and vowed to spur the war against the Viet Cong.

Five years ago: Britain's Conservative party won a surprising victory in a national election.

DISABLED TANKS, captured by Israeli troops from Egypt and Syria during the 1973 war, will be shipped further behind Israeli lines as part of their partial troop withdrawal from Suez. The Soviet-produced tanks, about 2,000 of them, will eventually be repaired for use by Israel.

The Doctor says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We are on a low income food budget, but do not want to resort to food stamps. However, I am concerned about my children, ages 10 through 14, and want to be sure they get enough protein. We have a small amount of meat every other day in stews, casseroles and an egg or cheese dish or corn chowder on the off day. We have hot cereal with milk for breakfast and a peanut butter or tuna sandwich and milk for lunch.

How many grams of protein a day do the children need? How much would my husband need? He was moderately active until unemployment hit.

DEAR READER — Since your children are entering the rapid growth age of 14 and over you should give them and your husband about the same amount, a minimum of 56 grams of good, complete protein a day. You can estimate 10 grams of protein for each cup of milk (8 ounces). A good, cheap source of protein is non-fat, dry milk powder which you can use for cooking and drinking. You can improve its flavor by allowing it to stand a day in the refrigerator before using for a beverage.

A pound of separable lean, raw meat, fish, or poultry, not counting bones, fat or skin (the edible portion) will contain about 100 grams of protein. Mature bean seeds are a good source of protein and with milk and meat part time will be adequate. One cup of drained, cooked Navy beans contain about 15 grams of protein.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read several articles recently that said some of the medicines used to treat high blood pressure cause women to be more prone to breast cancer. Would you please tell me if either Esidrex or Valium are in this group?

DEAR READER — Neither are. The medicines containing reserpine or rauwolfia serpentina are the only ones in question on this score. Esidrex is primarily a diuretic and helps to eliminate excess salt and lowers blood pressure some. Valium is a tranquilizer and helps lower blood pressure in some people by helping them avoid excess emotional tension.

Your question prompts me to make two observations. No one should stop taking medicine for high blood pressure on his own initiative, regardless of news stories. It is better to go to the doctor and let him change your medicine if he finds you are taking a large enough amount to require a change. There are a variety of medicines that can be used now, and it is possible to switch, if that is indicated.

And, anyone taking a tranquilizer for any reason, including treatment of high blood pressure, should eliminate all caffeine-containing beverages, specifically including coffee, tea and colas. You can use one of the decaffeinated brands of coffee. The caffeine in coffee has essentially the opposite effect of tranquilizers. It doesn't make good sense to buy tranquilizers and go home and wash them down with "liquid go pills" in the form of coffee or tea.

Alewife becomes a smelly problem

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — That smelly annual visitor, the alewife, is coming back to Lake Michigan beaches but experts predict only "moderate problems" with the pest.

The alewife threat "is somewhat heavier than in recent years. But we don't expect anything like 1967," said Edward Brown, a biologist with the Great Lakes Fishery Laboratory.

Billions of the tiny fish died and washed ashore in 1967, causing resort losses which the West Michigan Tourist Association says topped $55 million. Chicago officials estimated they cleared one billion dead fish from their beaches that year.

This year, only 10 truckloads of the fish have been removed from Chicago beaches. The only other area reporting a problem this year is Muskegon, which had an even smaller dieoff.

"It's going to be about like 1970 or 1971 or a little heavier," Brown predicted. In those years, scattered communities experienced heavy but brief dieoffs and beaches were cleared quickly.

Our Great Polyester Cord Tire Helps Hold The Line On Price

2 for $31

All-Weather 78

Goodyear's All-Weather 78 is built with polyester cord that's first tempered in an exclusive Goodyear process to set the cord at optimum strength and resilience. The wide 78-series tread is "reverse molded," a technique borrowed from race tire production. In reverse molding, the contour of the tread surface is slightly concave as it comes from the mold — so that when the tire is inflated, the tread makes full, flat contact with the road. And the rib-type tread design is well grooved, with plenty of traction edges to provide decisive grip. In every detail, our All-Weather 78 gives you honest quality, at a price that's in step with the time.
